

GOOGLE, TWITTER and WIKIPEDIA

In today's times you can inform yourself quickly about almost anything. But often one is also bombarded with too much and, also sometimes wrong information.

Therefore, as with everything, it is still best to make your own experiences. In the following journals/blogs I want to pass on some of the experiences and observations that I have personally made. This is not meant to be another detailed travel guide or travel pamphlet. But in the monthly editions I would like to bring Finland a little closer to you. With background information and first hand tips which you still may not find everywhere, much to my regret, only in German and English, because my French is not sufficient for this.

Pardon, mon amis francais!
